A

CURIOUS example of the difficulties of giving opera in the vernacular was lately seen at Vienna. The opera was "Don Giovanni," the libretto of which was written by Da Ponte, and in accordance with the fashion of Mozart's time was in Italian. When the fashion of using the vernacular came in several translations of the Italian text were made in various cities in Germany for the local troupes of singers. In the late Vienna performance Ottavio (Herr Schrödter) sang the Kalbeck translation; Leporello (Mantler) used the Frankfort version, while the role of the wicked hero was rendered by Demuth in the Hamburg text. In the dialogue the result was ludicrous, for as each translator had taken liberties with the original text to suit the company for whom he made his translation, the answers and questions were very bad misfits. All this took place in a series of "model" performances of Mozart's works under the direction of Gustav Mahler, at the Court Opera House, Vienna. The execution of the vocal part by the singers was equally bad.

Mrs. Hale -
Jan 1941

Hall, Wednesday evening, before a large audience. A program was presented, consisting of three works of good, artistic value, as follows: Miniatures (five pieces), G major, op. 28, Moszkowski; Sonata for piano and violin, A major, op. 12, No. 2, Beethoven; Second Concerto, G minor, op. 22, Saint-Saëns. Mrs. Castillo showed not only very superior ability in execution but her whole performance was typical of that musical proficiency which is so characteristic of the work at Mr. Faelten's school. Mr. Howard's and Mr. Faelten's playing was heartily appreciated.

During the past week the Orpheus Club, of Springfield, the Schubert Club, of Holyoke, and the Northampton
